COLLEGE OF COMMERCE

Dedication . . .

Our Dean has devoted his life to help us of the College of Commerce achieve our goal — an education which will benefit both our spiritual and temporal lives. We have little to offer him in return except this yearbook, the product of our hearts, minds, and hands. Therefore, as a measure of our appreciation and gratitude for his labor on our behalf, we, the students of the College of Commerce, dedicate the 1956 TOWERS to our Dean, Mr. J. Raymond Sheriff. May God continue to bless him in his work.

Foreword . . .

The pages of this 1956 TOWERS do not tell the whole story of Commerce life at Loyola; no yearbook, no matter what its size, could, for college life has a different meaning for each one of us, depending on what we have individually experienced. But there are some experiences which we all have shared in common and which will remain in our memories long after we have walked through the entrance of Lewis Towers for the last time. By capturing these events in word and picture, the TOWERS hopes to give a glimpse of the college life we have all known — a glimpse that will serve as a reminder of our college life throughout our future years. As you leaf through the following pages, may you again relive the experiences and renew the friendships and acquaintances which have been so meaningful to your life as a Loyola Commerce student.

Our Minds

"A true university . . . will educate the minds that give direction to the age, it will be a nursery of ideas, a center of influence . . . that which is strongest in man is mind, and when a mind truly vigorous, open, supple, and illuminated reveals itself, we follow in its path of light." — Bishop Spaulding.

VERY REV. JAMES F. MAGUIRE, S.J.
President

To the Commerce graduates of 1956:

I am pleased that the editor of your Yearbook has given me this opportunity for a few words of congratulation. Believe me, I do sincerely wish only the very best for each of you. It is my hope that the memory of your years at Loyola will always remain with you and that you will treasure your B.S.C. degree as a sacred trust. Through the years, may Almighty God grant you the wisdom and strength to judge the right and to follow it always. May He give you grace to grow saintly in your example to others and may you serve Him constantly by devoting yourself unselfishly to the welfare of all mankind.

James F. Maguire, S.J.

University

My dear Commerce students:

It is a pleasure to extend congratulations to the 1956 graduates of the College of Commerce of Loyola University.

The field of business is an area of the common good intimately connected with the national and international welfare of our citizens. The wise and prudent promotion of this common good requires knowledge of principle translatable into specific practice. Adequate application of sound principles to business requires activity graced by charity. Your University has endeavored to equip you with both gifts of nature and of grace.

You have our blessings on your efforts to promote this common good and our prayer for its success.

Sincerely yours,
Jeremiah J. O'Callaghan, S.J.
Executive Vice-President

REV. JEREMIAH J. O'CALLAGHAN, S.J.
Executive Vice-President

Mr. Harry McCloskey holds the responsible position of Acting Dean of Students. Since Father Lynch, S.J., who is the Dean of Students, became ill in the latter part of 1954, Mr. McCloskey has been fulfilling the tasks required of the Dean.

All Loyola Union affairs, the largest being the Loyola Fair held in the spring, are under the watchful eyes of their moderator. Besides this, all other activities of student organizations are cleared through this office. Mr. McCloskey assists, regulates, and moderates, but allows the students to formulate their own plans, policies, and activities. Out-of-town students also receive assistance in securing lodging through the efficient office of the Dean of Students.

MISS MARIETTE LE BLANC
Dean of Women

All the coeds of Loyola University have a close friend in Miss Mariette Le Blanc, Dean of Women. As the Dean, she promotes many activities which are of interest and importance to women students.

Miss Le Blanc personally interviews all freshmen and transfer coeds upon entering this University in order to acquire their friendship and to fully understand their individual problems. Another responsible endeavor in which she engages is being advisor to all the students in our University from foreign lands. She now assists approximately fifty students in this capacity. Miss Le Blanc is also moderator of the Coed Club.

Mr. Sheriff has been Dean of the College of Commerce since 1949. He was born in Cheyenne, Wyoming, and received his undergraduate education at Notre Dame University, a M.A. from Northwestern University, and his J.D. from Loyola. Except for a leave of absence during World War II, when he served in the Army Air Force with the rank of major, Mr. Sheriff has been at our University since 1925.

The College of Commerce ranks among the finest business colleges in the nation as witnessed by its acceptance last year into the American Association for Collegiate Schools of Business. This achievement has been in great part due to Dean Sheriff's efforts toward the constant improvement of our education.

MR. J. RAYMOND SHERIFF
Dean, College of Commerce

Dean's Office

Working hand in hand with Dean Sheriff of the College of Commerce and Dean Matre of University College are the girls of the office staff in Room 301. Their job is not a simple one since the efficient operation of the two schools requires voluminous correspondence and the accurate recording of information in student files. But these girls really show their colors at registration time, working long hours at the often tedious task of making sure that every student is registered correctly.

Throughout the school year, the office staff always remains cordial and happy to help students by giving them information or arranging appointments with the Deans. We wish to thank them for a job well done.

Every day the modern businessman is confronted by legal problems in the operation of his business. It is essential therefore, that every alert businessman have a knowledge of the law which governs commercial transactions so that he may conduct his business intelligently. To meet this need, Business Law was organized in the College of Commerce in 1925.

The Department of Business Law, a separate department since 1948, provides Loyola business students with a knowledge of the various branches of commercial law for two purposes. The primary purpose is to integrate the study of business law with other cultural studies by showing the role which common law, supplemented by statute, has played, and still plays, in the development of Western, Christian civilization. This purpose is in agreement with the Jesuit aims of education which stress the training of the full man for his cultural, material, and spiritual well-being.

The second purpose of this department is to enable students to recognize legal problems so they may take the proper steps to protect their legal rights and prevent needless losses. This is accomplished by use of the case method which develops the mind and analytical ability of the student in ascertaining legal problems and gives him some concept of their solution in legal terms. However, the aim of the business law courses is not to develop students to be lawyers or act as such.

Currently, three courses in business law are offered by the department in the day Commerce School. All students are required to take two courses: Contracts, Agency, Partnerships; and Corporations, Bailments, Sales, Negotiable Instruments. The third course, Property, Insurance, Surety and Guaranty, Bankruptcy, is required of all students majoring in accounting.

Mr. John A. Zvetina is Professor and Chairman of the Department of Business Law. Assisting him are Dean J. Raymond Sheriff, Associate Professor, and Mr. John D. O'Malley, Assistant Professor.

Seated: Mr. J. Raymond Sheriff, Mr. John Zvetina, Chairman.

Standing: Mr. Nicholas Limperis, Mr. John Breen, Mr. Claude Dollahan.

Accounting Society

The present school year has seen the Accounting Society become one of the most active organizations in the School of Commerce. Under the leadership of its president, Richard Amendola, and its other officers, it has sponsored a series of meetings at which men from almost every branch of accounting have spoken about the opportunities and requirements for accounting positions in their fields. Furthermore, these speakers have supplemented the knowledge of Accounting Society members by explaining various methods and techniques which cannot be covered in the limited accounting class periods during the academic year.

Moreover, the Accounting Society has participated in an association of accounting organizations from colleges and universities in the Chicago area, sponsored by the Illinois Society of Certified Public Accountants. Discussions at these association's meetings have resulted in co-operation between our organization and those of other schools which has led to joint meetings such as that held at De Paul University in December. Another important activity was the "Accounting Career Day" this February which took place at Loyola. Our members as well as those from other schools had the opportunity to meet and talk to men from public accounting firms and private industry to get a picture of the future in the field of accounting.

All these activities are in keeping with the purposes of the Accounting Society — to enable accounting students to broaden their knowledge of the field, to stimulate interest in the problems facing accountants, and to afford student aid in choosing a branch of accounting as a vocation.

The officers, Richard Amendola, president; Norman Risoya, vice-president; Thomas Redden, secretary; Richard Hoffman, treasurer; and members of the Accounting Society wish to thank most appreciatively Mr. Clifford Fay and the members of the Accounting Faculty for their help in this most successful year.

DICK AMENDOLA points out to Mr. Robert Meier that pleasure can be mixed with business.

DISCUSSING THE ACCOUNTING REVIEW with members of the Accounting Society are Mr. Arnold Schorn and Mr. Thomas McCracken.

Mr. Arnold N. Schorn; Mr. Robert A. Meier, Vice-Chairman; Mr. Thomas J. McCracken; Rev. Dumas McCleary, C.S.V.

The importance of accounting as the medium of commercial communication in the business world of today cannot be overstressed, for businessmen, investors, and the government depend upon accounting statements and reports to present them with a clear picture of the operations and financial condition of business enterprises and governmental units. Realizing the faith which these groups place in the accountant's work, Loyola's Accounting Department has achieved and maintained the highest standards in accounting instruction so that students concentrating in this field receive an adequate preparation for their accounting careers.

Since the certified public accountant has achieved a high professional status and consequently has assumed greater responsibilities, the main objective of the accounting curriculum is to equip students aspiring to this vocation with the necessary accounting knowledge and technical skill. As an aid to candidates for the C. P. A. examination, the Accounting Department offers the C. P. A. Review Course, organized by Mr. Chamberlain, Accounting Department Chairman. This Review Course has been recognized as one of the finest in the nation.

For those who wish to work as accountants in private business concerns, the accounting courses offered by the department give a thorough understanding of the accounting principles and procedures to be followed. Similarly, all Commerce students receive a knowledge of basic accounting in the elementary courses taken in their sophomore year. This fundamental knowledge is a "must" for anyone contemplating a business career.

The Chairman of the Accounting Department and Professor of Accounting is Mr. Henry Chamberlain. Mr. Robert Meier, Professor of Accounting, is Vice-Chairman of the department. The other faculty members are: Mr. Clifford Fay, Assistant Professor; Rev. Dumas McCleary, C.S.V., Assistant Professor; Mr. Thomas McCracken, Assistant Professor; Mr. Arnold Schorn, Instructor; and Mr. Eberhard Blanck, Lecturer.

PRESIDENT JAMES CULLINAN opens the first meeting of the Economics-Finance Society.

Economics-Finance Society

From 1946, when the Economics Society was reactivated, until this year, the Economics-Finance Department has had an organization mainly for those students majoring in economics. This year, however, it was felt that with the increasing number of students majoring in both fields, and the many areas of overlapping interest, a club composed of students majoring in both economics and finance would be better able to have a wider range of speakers, as well as give the student an opportunity for an exchange of ideas between their fields. It was felt that the organization could better fulfill its aim as an affiliate of a national organization, so in October, the organization applied for membership in the National American Finance Association, and was accepted.

The Economics-Finance Society is primarily an organization run by and for students majoring in economics or finance. Through the organization, students are helped to develop their abilities in planning activities, organizing projects, and directing meetings. To accomplish this aim, the club is run with a minimum of faculty supervision. Our faculty moderator, Dr. Frizol, offers advice on the activities of the club, but he neither instigates nor directs such activities, feeling that students have more interest in an organization in which they take the primary role by directing their own activities.

After the first organizational meeting was held in September, student committees were busy until spring getting well-known speakers and organizing student projects to be presented to the club. Speakers included Father Jancusko, S.J., who spoke on "The Federal Reserve Flow-of-Fund Accounting System" and Mr. Parker of Moody's who lectured on "Growth Stocks". At the last meeting of the fall term students held a symposium on "The Prospects for Business in 1956". Activities during the spring semester included guest speakers, a field trip, and another symposium.

The Department of Economics and Finance is organized under one chairmanship, but functions as two fields of concentration. Dr. Mogilnitsky has been the chairman of this department which consists of nine full-time members, since 1948.

Economics is considered vital for the individual student because it gives him an understanding and insight into the dynamic economy of which he is a member. With this background the student has the proper tools to be a better citizen of the community in which he lives. It will also prove invaluable as a preparation for his career in the professional business world.

Finance falls under the category of economics because with the background in this field the student is equipped to understand the internal functions of a business organization. Economics, on the other hand, usually consists of studies of the external forces that affect a commercial organization, and ultimately, our whole economic system.

The study of economics cannot be divorced from ethics and must be integrated into the curriculum of this social science. For this reason the department is constantly alert to present to the student for analytical discussion some present socio-economic problem. The student is reminded and urged to keep abreast with current economic problems which confront the world today. Only with this knowledge will the educated man be able to ward off the materialism that is encroaching upon us.

Theodosi A. Mogilnitsky, Ph.D., is Chairman of this department. Other members are Sylvester M. Frizol, Ph.D., Professor, Finance; Helen C. Potter, Ph.D., Finance; Joseph O. Englet, Ph.D., Assistant Professor, Statistics; Reverend Raymond C. Jancauskas, S.J., Ph.D., Assistant Professor, Economics; Alfred S. Oskamp, M.B.A., Assistant Professor, Finance; Reverend Theodore V. Purcell, S.J., Ph.D., Assistant Professor, Industrial Relations; Edward J. Taaffe, Ph.D., Assistant Professor, Economic Geography; Ernest M. De Cicco, A.M., Instructor, Economics.

The Society for the Advancement of Management is the recognized, national, professional organization of management personnel in industry, commerce, government, and education.

The Society was founded in 1936 by the merging of the Taylor Society, which was organized in 1912 to forward the ideas of Frederick W. Taylor and his associates, and the Society of Industrial Engineers, formed in 1917. A third organization, the Industrial Methods Society, merged with S. A. M. in 1946. Since the merging twenty years ago, the Society has built up a large and effective national organization of fifty-eight chapters with some 7000 senior members.

The student chapter of S.A.M. was founded here at Loyola in 1950 under the guidance of its present moderator, Dr. Peter T. Swanish, Chairman of the Department of Management. We and the other eighty-two student chapters of S.A.M. throughout the country comprise a total student membership of nearly 1700 members.

The three-fold goals which have been set for the Loyola chapter are as follows:

1. To bring executives in business and students of business closer together.
2. To serve as a medium for the exchange and dissemination of information on the problems, policies, and techniques of industry and management.
3. To provide the opportunity for participation in the organizing, planning, directing, and controlling of the activities of an organization dedicated to the advancement of management.

The officers for the school year 1955-56 have been Gerald White, president; George Stoy, vice-president; William Hebel, treasurer; Robert Klovstad, recording secretary; Guy Keefer, corresponding secretary.

The Department of Management, directed by Dr. Peter Swanish, has been a most progressive department in the College of Commerce. The management faculty has constantly endeavored to carry out the objectives of the department to train men and women who will become the industrial and commercial leaders of the future. The purposes of the management curriculum in the College of Commerce are to develop ability to make decisions on the higher levels of management authority and responsibility, to cultivate and apply the understanding that when management relates itself to man, human values and spiritual values come before material values, and to cultivate the realization that only when the virtues of charity, unselfishness, and justice set straight the hearts of men will the minds of men set straight the world of business.

The courses offered by the Management Department are designed to cover every field of business considered essential for today's executive. Included in the curriculum are the managerial fields of personnel, administration, production, and the vital area of industrial relations. The emphasis in these courses is to give the student a thorough knowledge and understanding of the basic principles of business management which may be applied to meet the ever-complex and varying problems of the commercial world.

In addition to classroom instruction, the Management Department encourages students to participate in extracurricular activities to facilitate personal and social adjustment. Partaking in such functions enables the student to develop an understanding of the human element and social forces which operate in a business enterprise.

The Chairman of the Management Department is Dr. Peter Swanish, Professor of Management. The other very able faculty members are: Mr. Melville Bowen, Lecturer; Mr. Joseph McCullough, Assistant Professor; Mr. Walter Peterson, Assistant Professor; and Rev. Theodore Purcell, S.J., Assistant Professor.

MR. LLOYD ALLEN, moderator, discusses a humorous topic with members of the Marketing Club.

PLANS FOR ACTIVITIES during the year are prepared by president Joe Burianek with the help of some of the members.

Marketing Club

The Marketing Club's activities this year have included periodic meetings with speakers who are experts in the field of marketing, field trips to locations of interest, and "Kaffe Klatches" where the members of the faculty and the Marketing Club meet to discuss their problems. Through these activities the Marketing Club provides its members with the exceptional opportunity for personal contacts with other individuals engaged in similar study of marketing problems. The guest speakers acquaint members with the current ideas and needs of marketing and give them a concept of their future in a marketing career.

To enable its members to learn the function of marketing processes in production, distribution, and promotion, the Marketing Club arranges field trips to firms engaged in one or more marketing activities. These field trips also stimulate the interest of members by giving them the opportunity to see marketing functions in actual operation.

During the past year, the Marketing Club with the aid of Dr. Kenneth B. Haas, Chairman of the Department of Marketing, sponsored its "Kaffe Klatch". This was a splendid opportunity for the members and the faculty to meet over a cup of coffee and discuss their problems and ideas in regard to the Marketing Department and marketing in general.

Through its affiliation with the American Marketing Association, the club endeavors to acquaint its members further with the current happenings in the field. Each member receives the official publication of the Association, the "Marketing Newsletter".

The officers of the Marketing Club for this year are: Joseph Burianek, president; Robert Hedges, vice-president; David O'Connor, treasurer; and Walter J. Ahern, secretary. The club wishes to thank Mr. Lloyd Allen for all of his efforts and help as moderator.

Because of the extensive growth in the importance of marketing and the complex problems that business has, and is, meeting in the distribution of goods and services, the necessity for such a direct field as marketing is evident. The constant rise of the general living standards of this country's citizens have also led to increased demands for an efficient marketing system. The solution to this problem is falling more and more upon new business leaders from the college classes who have been trained to solve these problems of distribution.

Loyola's College of Commerce is indeed proud of its Marketing Department which has greatly expanded its offerings since the department was introduced in the College in 1948. Today the Marketing Department offers studies ranging from small retail business operations to the dynamics of international trade. Students in this field of concentration study the phases of commodity and service distribution both from the point of view of procurement and of sales. The requirements in this marketing curriculum also include such studies as advertising, research, marketing, management and administration, and a study of existing problems in the field.

Piloted by its Chairman, Dr. Kenneth B. Haas, and assisted by Dr. Orange A. Smalley, Dr. Edward J. Taaffe, Mr. Harry McCloskey, Mr. Lloyd G. Allen, and Mr. Ralph Wagner, these faculty members combine their knowledge and experiences to give their students a complete and realistic understanding of the complexities of marketing as a most essential part of business.

The students of marketing are taught to become marketing executives who can deal with policy problems and make decisions, who analyze conditions and trends and make satisfactory recommendations as to appropriate action. This is accomplished by training the students in the study of marketing research, the history of marketing, and problems of distribution.

Mr. Lloyd G. Allen; Dr. Orange A. Smalley; Mr. Harry McCloskey; Dr. Kenneth B. Haas, Chairman; Mr. Ralph L. Wagner; Dr. Edward J. Taaffe.

The last bell in Lewis Towers has tolled us to our final class, and we, the seniors, have taken our leave. Our souls, minds, and bodies have been tempered for four years by the master process of Jesuit education.

From the time we entered the Towers as freshmen in September, 1952, each day brought new adventures in scholastic achievements, athletics, and social activities. We aimed high in everything we did and tried to live up to the high standards of a Loyola education. We will always remember our instructors whose patience, understanding, and devotion to our education assured the success of our class.

Reluctantly, we bid farewell to the Towers. But we will all seek to attain goals that in some measure will express our sincerest gratitude to God for extending to us the manifold benefits of an education at Loyola.

JUNIOR CLASS

Upon reaching the junior year of our college career, our plan for life is quite generally outlined for us. We have chosen our field of concentration and are earnestly in its pursuit.

The junior year was quite important socially also. Most of its members are known to each other, thereby creating a more friendly atmosphere. It is a well known fact that college friends are usually life-long friends.

Our junior year was marked by many religious, educational, and social advancements. Last fall our class attended its third annual retreat together, this year at St. Ignatius of Loyola Church. A retreat is only as good as the benefits derived by the individual, and we believe it was very beneficial for many.

At this point in our college life, we have passed the half-way mark, and the end is in sight. It became very evident this year that a college education was not too easily achieved, but well worth the effort.

This year's social calendar was very full. It was marked by almost weekly mixers and many dances, such as the Fall Frolic, the Sno-Ball, and the Spring Fair Dances. Our junior year was very important, interesting and enjoyable. Let us now hope our senior year will prove as beneficial.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

As we come to the end of our sophomore year, we find that we have concluded our two years of basic study. Upon entering into junior year we have a decision to make — that of selecting a major field of concentration. To help us in this decision a "Career Day" was held for all sophomores. Businessmen from all walks of life were present and talked of their respective fields. This, along with our first two years of study, has helped us to decide which field of concentration we plan to enter.

But not all of our time was spent in wrestling with studies. Activities and clubs, as well as fraternities, have provided an atmosphere for cultivating our special interests and talents. Our social life was also very active. In addition to attending the many college dances and parties this past year, the sophomore class had its own very successful party in which greater class unity was established.

As we leave our sophomore year, we may lose some old friends and may gain new companions; we are forewarned, and forearmed for the coming adventures of life; we are desirous of spiritual as well as material happiness.

Freshman Class

Our first task as incoming freshmen was to adjust ourselves to the strangeness of college life. It took a while to become accustomed to the courses, teachers and our fellow students, but in a short time we became a vital part of Loyola life. This year's freshman class has proven itself to be most active since we have done our best to give our support to the activities of the Commerce Council and of the University.

Our class officers have provided the leadership which has been responsible for our success. Bob Doherty, who was elected president last fall, was called to active duty with the Marine Corps after completing his first semester. In that time he demonstrated his ability as a capable class leader. Gay Lee Luhrs succeeded Bob as president, becoming the first coed class president in the College of Commerce. She also served as secretary to the Commerce Council. The vice-presidency was ably handled by Bob Buckley, and Larry Seres conscientiously fulfilled the job of secretary-treasurer.

Ramblers

There was an optimistic feeling around the campus last September that this year would produce a big winner for Loyola's Ramblers. But as the season progressed the jubilant spirit disappeared as losses began mounting.

After winning their first two games rather handily, the Ramblers headed for Notre Dame full of confidence and certain that an upset was in the making. This game was one of the most heartbreaking ever played by the Loyola Basketball team. Notre Dame managed to squeak out a one-point overtime victory that seemed to deflate the spirit of the whole team. They then lost successive games to Ohio State, Purdue, and Western Michigan. Purdue's victory over the Maroon and Gold was by one point in the last few minutes of game time.

Getting their confidence back, the Ramblers won three straight and seemed on the victory path once again. This time, however, Drake came from behind to win in the last minute of play, and a six-game losing streak began. Inexperience and inability to rebound appeared to be the major defects in the play of the team during this losing streak.

Then came the highlight of the season. Sparked by Jack Carpenter's 29 points, the Ramblers obtained sweet revenge as they upset the "Fighting Irish" of Notre Dame 71 to 65 before some 8,000 spectators in the Chicago Stadium.

Ed Stube was the second star performer at the Stadium that victorious night in the last five minutes of the encounter. Four layups, almost simultaneously, clinched the game for the Ramblers.

Loyola's team was inspired from beginning to end against the foe from South Bend, as they set out to prove themselves superior. They showed real teamwork and spirit which seemed to have been lacking previously. Their victory will long be remembered by Loyolans since this marked the first time in 41 years that the Ramblers had defeated the Irish on the basketball court.

The team finished the season by winning four of their remaining eight games and had an overall record of 10 wins and 14 losses.

Jack Carpenter led the scoring with 309 points. He also led in rebounds, had the highest scoring average, and committed the most personal fouls. Jerry Lyne, the Rambler Captain, led the team in free throws with 101 although he only played in 20 games due to injury in the early part of the year.

Track

After completing a successful season, members of Loyola's track team could conclude that hard work pays off. Their constant practice at the Chicago Ave. Armory has resulted in a most successful showing this year.

Perhaps the outstanding event of the year was the mile relay held at the Michigan AAU on February 3. The team, composed of co-captain Jack Egan, Max Muchowicz, Bob Saddler and Pete Wall, gave Loyola an easy victory. The following week, with Jack Egan replacing Muchowicz, the trio won its second straight event by taking the mile relay at the Michigan State Relays by 20 yards.

On February 18, Loyola met Bradley and Northwestern in a triangular meet at McGaw field house, with the Ramblers winning second to a strong Northwestern team. Our harriers took scoring places in ten out of eleven events including five firsts.

Kujawinski, Horton, and Hudgin of the Maroon and Gold placed one, two and three respectively in the two-mile run. In the 880, Saddler, Fox and Shutts placed two, three, and four, while Kujawinski took first in the one-mile run and two-mile event. Co-captain Jack Egan also came up with a first by winning the 440 with a time of 51 seconds.

Don Stateler accomplished what Egan almost did by setting a record in the broad jump for the triangular meet. His jump of 22 feet was a new mark for the event although he has jumped 22.9 feet.

The Ramblers' other first place was in the mile relay in which Muchowicz, Egan, Pete Wall, and Mike Burke, won their third straight college mile. Loyola's weak point in the meet was in the field events in which the team could take only two places.

In addition to the above meets, the harriers participated in the Daily News Relays, the Cleveland Knights of Columbus Meet, and the Milwaukee Journal Relays, in which they placed second.

Led by co-captains Pete Fox and Jack Egan, the Maroon and Gold track team has had an outstanding season. Its outlook for next year is very promising due to the bright prospects who will replace this year's graduates.

Swimming

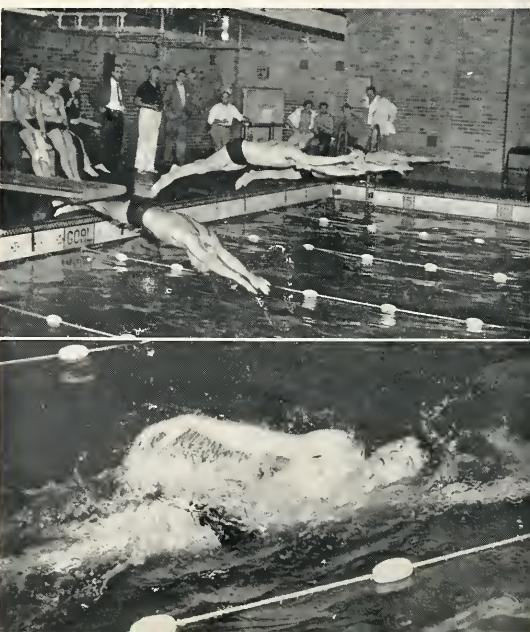

Habits are hard to break. This fact was demonstrated again this year as Loyola's swimming team found themselves the victors of the Chicago Intercollegiate Championship. This was the fourth time in a row that the Rambler tankers won the crown.

Sparked by John Van Wormer's record performance and the work of co-captains John Dunne and Jim Allen together with Ray Van De Walle, John Stokes, Jim Veverka and Joe Doody, the team came out of this year's competition with a championship and a winning record.

The team, excellently coached by Don Chalmers, will see the return of many regulars next season, which will insure another year of success.

Intramurals

The Chicago Avenue Armory buzzed with activity this fall as Lewis Towers' intramural football got underway. The championship contest saw Alpha Kappa Psi take first place with the BVD's in the number two spot. The hardest fought games were those between Alpha Kappa Psi and Pi Alpha Lambda. Smarting from a 6 to 0 defeat by the Pi Alphs in their first contest, the AKPsi gridders got their revenge by winning the return game 14 to 6. From then on, such players as Joe Carini, John Ambrose, Dennis Price, and Bob Bordelon had no difficulty in sparking the AKPsi victory drive.

Although unsuccessful in their championship bid on the gridiron, the BVD's fought hard against their opposition on the Armory court to take first place in the intramural basketball contest. The teamwork of Brett, Buckley and Kraemer proved to be an insurmountable obstacle to the other Lewis Towers' teams. As fine as the Armory basketball playing was, however, the All-Star quintet from Lewis Towers was no match for the All-Star team of the Lake Shore campus, for the northsiders were victorious in the intramural basketball All-Star Game by a sizeable score.

The other major intramural contest this year was the volleyball tournament in which Delta Sigma Pi won first place while Alpha Kappa Psi occupied the second spot.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL reached its climax at the All-Star Game at the Alumni Gym where the Lake Shore Campus was victorious. Athletic interests turned to softball as spring weather returned to Chicago.

Our Activities

"The true Christian does not renounce the activities of this life, he does not stunt his natural faculties; but he develops and perfects them with the supernatural. He thus enables what is merely natural in life and secures for it new strength in the material and temporal order, no less than in the spiritual and eternal." — Pope Pius XI.

Your student governmental body in the College of Commerce is the Commerce Council composed of elected class officers. Presidents of each class fill the various offices on the Council itself. As its moderator, Dean J. Raymond Sheriff is a constant source of inspiration and assistance.

This year's Council provided the student body with a well-rounded social calendar. Its first mixer in September served as a kick-off for a successful school year. On the last day of final exams in January, it sponsored the Sno-Ball, one of the greatest social successes at Loyola this year. A fitting conclusion to the year was provided by the Honors Day Dinner Dance on May 5th.

Striving to be of service to students, the Council conducted a special freshman orientation for the new students. It instituted a combined student directory and sponsored a job clinic to provide information on job getting techniques. The 1956 TOWERS, which you are now reading, was another of the Council's major projects. On an all-University level the Council co-sponsored the Variety Show and actively supported the Union Fair.

During this year the Commerce Council established itself as the outstanding student governmental body in the University. This was due to your discreet selection of representatives and the wonderful support which you gave them.

Loyola Union

The several schools and colleges of Loyola University are united by the student governing body, the Loyola Union. All students who have registered and are in academic residence in any of the schools and colleges of the University are members of the Loyola Union.

The mainstay of the Union is the Congress. It is composed of congressmen selected in January to serve from the first session in February of each school year until the same month of the following year. The Congress is a permanent body which meets regularly in February, April, October, and December; other meetings may be held at the call of the president. Each division of Loyola elects not less than two nor more than six members to Congress; fraternities and social and academic organizations are entitled to send one member each. Annually in the regular February meeting, the Congress elects a board of governors, which is the policy formulating segment of the Union.

The purpose of the Union is to foster the mental, moral, and physical development of the students of the various colleges, to support student activities, and to develop friendly relations between the students and the faculty.

The activities of the Union include the Fall Frolic at which Miss Varsity is crowned and the Winter Frolic which is usually held off-campus. Again, this year, the Union sponsored the annual Fair on the Lake Shore Campus. The purpose of this event is to raise funds for use by the Union in improving student facilities on all campuses. To many students at Loyola, it is the climax of the year's social activities and calls for the greatest amount of effort and co-operation to insure its success.

HANDSHAKES AND SMILES are given by the newly elected Union officers — Jack Donahue, president; Carol Urbanus, executive secretary; and Charles Caulfield, vice-president.

The 1956 TOWERS is the third of a series of yearbooks published by the Commerce Council for the students of the College of Commerce. A Commerce yearbook has almost become a tradition; the staff of this year's TOWERS hopes that this book will prove to be a highlight of this tradition. Benefiting from the experience of the last two yearbooks, we set out this year to produce a book which would cover more thoroughly every aspect of our life at Lewis Towers. To achieve this end, we have enlarged the size of the TOWERS, improved the photography by using more pictures and using photos taken expressly for TOWERS' use, and devoted greater coverage to sports and Commerce School activities.

Dennis Price served as editor-in-chief of the TOWERS and had the responsibility of overseeing and co-ordinating the operations of the other staff members. As production editor, Norman Risoya was in charge of planning the layout of the TOWERS, obtaining the necessary photographs and copy, and working with our publisher, Ray Langen of Campus Service. Curt Richter, editor of photography, did an excellent job by providing the majority of pictures himself, and obtaining the others from several Loyola photographers. Finances were under the direction of Earl Frawley whose main task was collecting payments for subscriptions made at the beginning of the school year. Without the co-operation of the other members of the staff listed on the opposite page, production of the TOWERS would have been impossible, for they provided ideas and did work which were essential to a good yearbook.

Our Dean, Mr. J. Raymond Sheriff, gave us all possible aid and was always a source of inspiration and encouragement when days were dark. We are grateful for these words which he has written:

There is much that might be said in apology for any college yearbook, and the TOWERS of 1956 will not prove to be exceptional in that regard. It has been produced by a small group of devoted workers laboring without a tradition of long standing — laboring even without the advice of a faculty moderator. It is solely their volume both in plan and in execution. I hope it is as good as their patient and persistent labors deserve — which is considerable. What has been accomplished in the face of a crescendo of discouragements is a tribute mainly to Dennis Price, Norman Risoya, and Fred Egloff. The College of Commerce should be proud of their achievement — even if that achievement should fall short of the editors' dream of perfection.

TOM SPLIT checks the files for items of interest aided by Bernie Rausch and Dean Dolan.

HARD AT WORK on production of the TOWERS are Dennis Price, Fred Egloff, Sally Schrieber, and Jim Thorpe.

R. O.

LOYOLA'S R.O.T.C. BAND stands at attention before rehearsing a new selection.

Lt. Col. Charles Nowe, the present Commander of the R. O. T. C. unit at Loyola University, founded the band in 1954 as an improvement on the drum and bugle corps which has formerly provided the marching music for Loyola's men in khaki.

Sgt. Duffy and Dr. Salvatore provide faculty supervision and musical direction for the new band while cadet Sgt. Dick Kimbal is the man responsible for putting the band through its paces on the field.

Throughout the year the band is acutely conscious of two special performances in the month of May, the President's review and the Federal Inspection. Last year, with less than a year of experience to draw from, the band played in both these parades and performed admirably.

The Loyola University rifle team was organized in 1949. It is composed of a volunteer group of cadets from all four of the Military Science classes.

The team's first range was located in the basement of the Lake Shore Armory. A new range was opened in 1952 with a view to promote and better the achievements of the squad. In 1952, the team placed high in the William Randolph Hearst Match and the Fifth Army Match and compiled an eight and ten record for the season. The 1953-1954 and the 1954-1955 seasons saw more improvement. They placed eighth in the Fifth Army Match and had successful season records of 14-5 and 15-3.

The team is under the guidance of M/Sgt. Davis.

The Loyola University Drill Team, a volunteer group organization composed of students from all four classes of Military Science, was organized in February 1952 and entered intercollegiate competition in 1953.

In both 1953 and 1954 the team has been awarded trophies at the Purdue University Invitational Drill Meet in platoon competition with drill teams from colleges throughout the eastern and midwestern states. One of the outstanding features of the 1954 Drill Team was the award of first place to Cadet Ronald P. Pawl for his performance in individual drill competition.

In April of 1955 the drill team was awarded first place for its excellent performance at the Senior R. O. T. C. Drill Meet. This meet was held in the Chicago area and is sponsored by the Cook County Chapter of the Reserve Officers Association of the United States.

In addition, the team has given exhibitions in the Chicago Stadium, on television, and on special occasions by request of various organizations.

At the present time, Cadet Gerald A. Bodmer is the drill master. The drill team schedule for the coming season includes Purdue University Invitational Drill Meet and the Reserve Officers Association Senior R. O. T. C. Drill Meet.

Alpha Delta Gamma

From its founding on the Lake Shore Campus of Loyola in 1924, the Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity has constantly progressed and expanded. A nucleus of fourteen Loyolans, desiring to spread their ideas, initiated early in the fraternity's history an expansion program. This program produced the first national Catholic fraternity in Catholic colleges and universities. Today these chapters extend from Washington, D. C., to Los Angeles, California.

The activities of the fraternity are regulated to include all phases of student life at Loyola. Primarily a social fraternity, Alpha Delta Gamma actively encourages academic, religious, cultural, and athletic endeavors. These play an integral part in the development of its members. The great majority of activities are co-ordinated between the officers and moderator, Rev. Mulligan, S.J., with the purpose of the fraternity kept in the forefront, namely, the development of true Christian manhood, centered around Catholic ideals and friendship.

Throughout the year, all aspects of student life are emphasized among the members. Part of its projects is an increased interest and participation in the extracurricular activities which are offered by both fraternal and non-fraternal organizations of the school. This includes, primarily, active participation in the intramural affairs on the Lake Shore and Lewis Towers campuses.

Made up of almost equal membership from the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Commerce, members of Alpha Delta Gamma may be found in all parts of student government, doing a job that is a credit to Loyola.

Alpha Kappa Psi

Alpha Kappa Psi, founded at New York University in 1904, is the first professional fraternity in the field of business administration in the United States. Gamma Iota Chapter, founded at Loyola in 1952, was the seventy-fifth to join the national fraternity which today consists of ninety-six chapters throughout the country.

Dedicated to promoting the interests of the business profession, the members of Alpha Kappa Psi sponsor each year in April a Career Day for sophomore Commerce students. For its own members, the fraternity provides an insight into the operation of business with speakers, movies, tours, and discussions of current topics.

Socially, it cannot be said that Gamma Iota Chapter is deficient. Members take part in a number of social events throughout the year, such as the Halloween Hayride, and the New Year's Eve and St. Patrick's Day parties. The culmination of the Chapter's social life takes place each June at the annual Golf Outing in Wisconsin.

The religious welfare of the members is developed by a program of spiritual activities. Twice a year the members and their fathers attend Mass offered by Father Lester Evett, the fraternity chaplain; afterwards they meet for a Communion breakfast. In addition, a majority of the members make a closed retreat each year.

In its brief existence at Loyola, Alpha Kappa Psi has become a valuable asset to the College of Commerce. Much of its success is due to the aid and counsel of its moderator, Mr. Joseph V. McCullough, and the Chapter would like to thank him for a job well done.

Blue Key

The Blue Key National Honor Fraternity was founded at the University of Florida in 1924. Since that time its growth has been phenomenal and it has come to be accepted as the leadership equivalent of scholarly Phi Beta Kappa. The membership now totals 35,000 and every state of the Union boasts one or more of its ninety-six chapters. The Loyola chapter of Blue Key was established in 1926, and has functioned for many years as an honorary leadership organization. Many of the University's most distinguished alumni and faculty are members.

During the last year, however, the fraternity underwent a reorganization and reorientation. The Chapter was reorganized as a service group designed to assist the administration and faculty, and to encourage and help lead all student organizations. The success of the experiment has been outstanding. The men of Blue Key have been appointed permanent student marshalls for all registrations and commencement exercises. They have helped officiate at numerous University functions such as the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the founding of the Society of Jesus. Likewise, their two subsequent initiation dinners have been significant and distinguished social successes.

Membership in Blue Key is by invitation only. Pledges are accepted during their junior or senior year. Students eligible are those men of required scholastic standing who have been most active in extracurricular activities and have maintained a continuous record of unselfish service to the University and its student body.

Coed Club

Following its organization in the spring of 1949 under the direction of Miss Julia O'Malley, then Dean of Women, the Coed Club has become a most active social group at Loyola University with a membership of over 270 coeds from the undergraduate schools of Arts and Sciences, Commerce, and Nursing. Answering the need for a unifying organization among the women students, this club sponsors a series of diversified social activities each year.

This year's social program began with a Welcoming Tea for all new women students of the University. Following the first few weeks of school a "Big Sister" dinner was given as a warm greeting to all new members of the club. Early in November the annual Card Party-Fashion Show was held. The Christmas formal dance at the Lake Shore Club of Chicago proved to be a high point on the club's social calendar. In the second semester, a dinner was held for the coeds and their parents at which the Very Reverend James Maguire, S.J., President of Loyola University, was the guest speaker.

Today the Coed Club is a well-established social group which is an asset both to the women students and the University. Although primarily social, the club aims also to integrate and adjust its members to college life by giving its support to the various activities of Loyola organizations including those sponsored by the Loyola Union.

For guidance in all of its activities, the Coed Club is fortunate to have as its moderator, the Dean of Women, Miss Mariette Le Blanc.

Delta Sigma Pi

Any society or organization comprised of a rank and file has a goal or objective that it strives to achieve and which is the very purpose for its existence. Delta Sigma Pi is an organization, a professional fraternity, which has a specific objective toward which all of its endeavors are directed. That purpose is to foster the study of business in universities, to encourage scholarship, social activity, and the association of students for their mutual advancement through research and practice; to promote a closer affiliation between the commercial world and the students of commerce; to further a higher standard of commercial ethics and culture, and to improve the civic and commercial welfare of the community.

Next year Delta Sigma Pi will celebrate its golden anniversary in New York City where its bi-annual national convention will take place. At that convention a representation from ninety-three undergraduate chapters as well as from thirty-six alumni associations will be anticipated. Presently the fraternity has over 36,000 businessmen and college students enjoying membership in Delta Sigma Pi. When we consider these few facts and statistics and observe the successful careers of our alumni, we cannot help but feel that our fraternity, Delta Sigma Pi, has achieved, and is continuing to achieve its purpose for which so many men have been brought together under a fraternal bond and have made our world a better place in which to live.

Kappa Beta Gamma

Although Kappa Beta Gamma has existed as a national, social sorority since 1920, it remained virtually unknown to Loyola University until the Epsilon Chapter was founded here in 1953. All of the chapters are located in Catholic colleges, but girls of all creeds and all races are welcome.

Although in its infancy, the sorority has already inaugurated several functions which have become traditional; such as the party given the "actives" by each pledge class, Founders Day, and the informal and formal initiation of pledges which follows their six-week pledge period. Climaxing the social activities are the dinner dances held at the end of each semester.

No fraternal organization, however, can afford to keep all of its functions entirely within its own membership. With this in mind, Kappa Beta Gamma has endeavored to participate in such activities as the Float Parade, the Fair and Frolic, the Variety Show, and other events requiring the co-operation of the entire University. In an effort to promote Loyola spirit, the sorority itself sponsored a cheering contest during the basketball season.

In August the attention of all chapters of Kappa Beta Gamma will focus on Loyola as the Chicago Chapter will be host at the bi-annual national convention. This is the first time this convention will be held at Loyola and provides a welcome opportunity to introduce the school to the visiting sisters. During the coming years the sorority will strive, as it has in the past, to "foster and perpetuate loyal support of college, university, and alma mater, of God and country."

Pi Alpha Lambda

Pi Alpha Lambda Fraternity was founded in 1925 by Reverend James J. Mertz, S.J., on the ideals of promoting Christian morals and high scholastic standards so as to foster the aims and interests of Loyola. Presently, under the guidance of its moderator, Dr. Paul Hummert, the Pi Alphas continue in this purpose by active participation in the academic, social, athletic, and spiritual functions of both the school and fraternity.

Academically, every year several members distinguish themselves scholastically, ranking high on the honor rolls of all the colleges of the University.

Aside from sharing in the social functions of the school the members participate in several fraternity affairs, namely, monthly closed parties, an open mixer, and two formal dances.

With regard to athletics, Pi Alpha Lambda is particularly proud of its intramural teams which consistently achieve honors in the intra-school program, and also of the fact that it has more monogram winners in its membership than any other fraternity.

On the spiritual side, the members attend an annual closed retreat, sponsor Holy Week services, and conduct a fraternal Family Communion Sunday.

Looking to the future, Pi Alpha Lambda is planning a more diversified program for the fraternity with the hope of complementing the ideal of developing the whole man, morally, socially, physically, and intellectually in the true Jesuit tradition.

Sigma Pi Alpha

Sigma Pi Alpha Fraternity was founded by a former Loyolan, Louis V. Potempa in October, 1932. Twenty-four years later the original objectives of promoting the intellectual and social interests of its brothers and providing the opportunities for their development, both moral and physical in an atmosphere of friendship and co-operation, are still adhered to. In keeping with the intention of the first brothers, Sigma Pi Alpha has consistently refused to affiliate with any national fraternity. It is sincerely held that the ideals and interests of its brothers can best be forwarded only through this policy. The brothers of Sigma Pi Alpha can be found in all divisions of the University.

Originally intended for men of Polish extraction, Sigma Pi Alpha opened its membership to all students of Loyola University in 1948 regardless of race, religion or national origin. Prospective pledges are introduced to the fraternity at one of its semi-annual smokers. They then embark on a period of pledging, strictly supervised, during which time they are screened so that only those of the highest caliber are permitted to become brothers. When their pledging is completed they are formally initiated into the fraternity.

Each year is complete both spiritually and socially, for Sigma Pi Alpha is the sponsor of numerous activities. There is an annual closed retreat at New Mellerey, and an Alumni Memorial Mass and breakfast. Socially, several closed parties are held, and an annual dinner dance, a mixer, and on the last day of school, the "Fraternity Man of the Year" award is presented by the fraternity at its annual Spring Nocturnal Dance, open to the entire University.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

This has been the most important year in the history of the University Club since its foundation at Loyola University in 1938. This local fraternity became an affiliate of Tau Kappa Epsilon, one of the largest national fraternities in the United States. At the end of the 1955-56 academic year, Tau Kappa Epsilon numbered over 130 undergraduate chapters throughout the country, with numerous graduate chapters in the major cities.

The University Club was officially installed as a chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon in late May of this year. Because of the affiliation with a nationally renowned fraternity, it received the largest pledge class in the history of the organization. Members of Tau Kappa Epsilon are drawn from both the College of Commerce and the College of Arts and Sciences. Many graduate members are in the other divisions of the University.

Most successful of this year's social activities in Tau Kappa Epsilon was the St. Patrick's Day Dance, held at the Morrison Hotel. The "Tekes" also managed a booth at the 1956 Loyola Fair. Their basketball team placed fourth in this year's intramural fraternity league.

Historical Society

HISTORICAL SOCIETY'S OFFICERS together with moderator Dr. Kenneth Jackson listen to a report from Valerie Urbanek.

The Loyola Historical Society is one of the University's most active organizations. Though an academic organization, the scope and interest of the Historical Society is not limited to one department or to one school. It boasts of being one of the truly University wide groups, having as active members students from the College of Commerce, College of Arts and Sciences, and the University College.

During the last year, the Historical Society has sponsored meetings of interest to all the students, not just those interested in history. In co-operation with the History Department, the Society helped present the Toynbee Symposium in November. They presented their annual Christmas party prior to the Holidays. In the spring, the Historical Society presented a lecture by Dr. K. C. Wu, former governor of Formosa. These are only a few of the programs offered this year by the group.

The officers of the Loyola Historical Society for the year were Raymond Siewert, president; Norman Risoya and William Zumbar, vice-presidents; Arvid Johnson, treasurer; James Alesia, Union representative; and Kathleen Cummings, Rosemary Fuerst, and Valerie Urbanek, secretaries. The faculty moderator was Dr. Kenneth Jackson.

Sodality

FATHER HOGAN addresses a meeting of the Sodality on the purposes of the Sodality way of life.

The Sodality at Loyola through devotion to the Virgin Mary seeks to make the faithful gathered together under her name good Catholics, sincerely bent on sanctifying themselves, each in his state of life, and zealous, as far as their conditions in life permit, to save and sanctify their neighbor and to defend the Church of Jesus Christ.

One of the main activities of the Sodality is the meetings held every Friday after Mass in Room 201 of Lewis Towers. These weekly meetings, open to everyone, provide the opportunity for partaking in discussions and hearing talks intended to increase devotion to our Blessed Mother and her Son. Breakfast is also served at these friendly, informal gatherings to accommodate those who have received Holy Communion.

Throughout the school year, the Sodality room on the third floor of Lewis Towers is open for Sodalists to spend their free time or consult with Father Hogan, Sodality moderator. Serving also as student counsellor and chaplain of Loyola's R. O. T. C. unit, Father Hogan is always willing and able to help students with their problems and helped many of us during our retreat last fall.

STANDING ROOM ONLY is often the rule at the popular, enjoyable meetings in Room 201.
